The world this year will celebrate the 50th anniversary of Earth Day on April 22. This year's theme 'Climate Change', couldn't be a more appropriate topic in these pressing times.

With rapid urbanization, the transport and electricity sectors are going to play an undeniable role in the day-to-day aspects of life. Tackling climate change will be difficult without first reducing harmful emissions and our reliance on fossil fuels to generate power. By adopting clean energy and clean transportation, we as global citizens should work toward minimizing the impact of the factors that contribute to climate change.

With this web conference we aim to provide a forum for global speakers, who are leaders of the concerned industries and environment organisations, to share their views on climate change and our responsibilities in countering that change.
